SUBJECT: Plan Case 2254-T-15: An application by the Urbana Zoning Administrator to amend the Urbana Zoning Ordinance with minor changes to Article II (Definitions), Article V (Use Regulations), Article VI (Development Regulations), Article VII (Conditional and Special Uses), Article VIII (Parking and Access), Article IX (Comprehensive Sign Regulations), Article XI (Administration), Article XII (Historic Preservation), and Article XIII (Special Development Provisions).

Introduction

At the September 14, 2015, Committee of the Whole meeting, staff addressed several areas of a multipart “omnibus” text amendment to the Urbana Zoning Ordinance that City Council had directed staff to study in more detail at the August 3, 2015, City Council meeting. At this meeting, Council raised some follow up questions and concerns regarding electronic signs, which are addressed below. In addition, staff was asked to draft a separate ordinance regarding the “Microbrewery” elements of the proposed text amendment. Attached to this memorandum are two draft ordinances, one containing the multipart “omnibus” text amendment to the Zoning Ordinance, and one containing a text amendment to the Zoning Ordinance to add “Microbrewery” as a defined land use.

Electronic Sign Regulations

Measuring the “Brightness” of Electronic Signs

Section IX-4 of the current Urbana Zoning Ordinance requires that the brightness of an electronic sign be measured based on the following table:

| Electronic sign size | Measurement distance |
|-----------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 0-100 square feet | 100 feet |
| 101-350 square feet | 150 feet |
| 351-650 square feet | 200 feet |

However, this table does not provide the best guidance to regulate the brightness of electronic signs in Urbana. First, the City of Urbana does not allow signs that are over 300 square feet in area, yet the table provides regulations for larger signs. Second, the table does not adequately address the sizes of signs that currently exist in Urbana. Out of 11 electronic signs in the City, none are larger than approximately 33 square feet. Consequently, the current regulation that groups together all signs up to 100 square feet in area has the effect of allowing smaller signs that can be much brighter than larger signs. As an extreme example of the current regulation, a one-square-foot sign is allowed to be 100 times brighter at the sign face than a 100-square-foot sign. As a more realistic example, the largest existing electronic sign in Urbana (at 33.3 square feet) is allowed to be three times as bright as a 100-square-foot sign.

Staff had initially proposed altering the table to include smaller sign area ranges and closer measurement distances to address the potential for very bright small signs. However, while researching this topic, staff discovered a simpler, more rational method for determining the distance at which measurements can be taken for electronic signs of any size.¹ The measurement distance can be calculated using the following equation:

$$\text{Measurement Distance} = \sqrt{\text{Area of Sign (Sq. Ft.)} * 100}$$

Adopting this equation in place of the existing table would ensure that all signs are subject to the same standards for brightness, as indicated in the following table.

Table: Sign Brightness Scenarios (Current vs. Proposed)

| Size of Sign (ft ²) | Current | | Proposed (Based on Equation) | |
|---------------------------------|---------------------------|---|------------------------------|---|
| | Measurement Distance (ft) | Initial Brightness (candelas/m ²) | Measurement Distance (ft) | Initial Brightness (candelas/m ²) |
| 1 | 100 | 32,280 | 33 | 323 |
| 25 | 100 | 1,291 | 50 | 323 |
| 50 | 100 | 646 | 71 | 323 |
| 100 | 100 | 323 | 100 | 323 |

Note that for 100-square-foot signs, the proposed equation-based regulations match our current regulations. The report containing the above equation was derived from the same source that our existing regulations were based on. Adopting the equation into our ordinance would therefore be consistent with the process that produced our current regulations.

Illuminance (Foot Candle) Maximum

City Council has also asked whether maintaining the existing maximum light level of 0.3 foot candles above ambient light is desirable, or whether the maximum should be lowered to 0.25 foot candles to be consistent with the proposed draft of new regulations for digital billboards. The proposed changes would only affect the measurement distance and do not address maximum light levels. The basis for the current and proposed regulations is a study by Dr. Ian Lewin, Digital Billboard Recommendations and Comparisons to Conventional Billboards. In the study, Dr. Lewin proposed a maximum illuminance of 0.3 foot candles above ambient light levels. Staff recommends keeping 0.3 foot candles as a maximum.

Existing Conditions

City Council expressed concerns over making changes to regulations without first understanding how bright existing electronic signs are, and how their brightness relates to current and proposed regulations. Council asked staff to take measurements of existing electronic signs to better evaluate the proposed changes. Staff recently conducted a field test of the measurement methodology at Phillips Recreation Center and will be taking measurements of electronic signs and will present findings to City Council on September 21.

Options

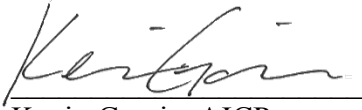

The Urbana City Council has the following options in this case:

- a. Approve one or both of the proposed ordinance amendments as presented herein;
- b. Approve one or both of the proposed ordinance amendments as modified by specific suggested changes; or
- c. Deny one or both of the proposed ordinance amendments.

Recommendation

At their July 23, 2015 meeting, the Urbana Plan Commission voted eight ayes to zero nays to forward the proposed text amendment to City Council with a recommendation for APPROVAL, including all of the changes that have been incorporated into the draft ordinance. Staff likewise recommends approval, done with the further modifications requested by the City Council.
